

Film Screening :

Most Likely to SUCCEED

Join Us Wednesday, March 9 for a look at education in the 21st century

Most Likely to Succeed compels audiences to consider what sort of educational environment is best for students in the 21st century. It explores how the United States' educational system was the envy of the world over a century ago, but has not evolved as the world has changed. The film was an official selection at numerous international film festivals.

Pickard Auditorium - Neenah High School free and open to the public

6:30 p.m.

Education experts Dr. Josh Garrison (UW-Oshkosh) and Oliver Schinkten (LinkedIn) will lead a discussion about the state of education and preview the film

7 p.m.

Showing of Most Likely to Succeed

8:30 p.m.

Brief post-film audience discussion

"...among the best education documentaries ever produced."
Education Week magazine

"...a documentary that charts a history of the American education system and offers a deep look into one new approach to learning."
The Seattle Times

"After seeing this film, you'll never look at school the same way again."
Most Likely to Succeed website
(mltsfilm.org)